

DINING

Don't Be Bashful

Second helpings are always in store.

Nobody asked for nine different pancake houses, but everyone's sure glad we have them. While Gatlinburg is known for its syrupy stacks, and even has a full week dedicated to them every year, there are plenty of other dishes we do well. For starters, if it's home cooking you're looking for, our options run the gamut. From meat-and-threes and fried chicken to fresh-off-the-grill barbecue, there's an abundance of comfort food in these parts. Craving something a bit more elevated? We have our fair share of steakhouses and fine dining, too.

That's the thing about this town—we do variety well. From intimate cocktail bars along the river to lively eateries the kids will love. Specially curated small plates to corn dogs bigger than you've ever seen before. There are new foods to try, tried-and-true classics to savor and dining atmospheres to match the vibe of any group.

ONLY IN GATLINBURG

Home-Brewed Bevs

From hoppy ales to homemade ciders, Gatlinburg is home to some of the finest breweries in the Smokies. If you're feeling parched after a day exploring the Parkway or the national park, we're partial to a few of our favorites.

PINTS & PIZZA

It's a dynamic duo that Gatlinburg Brewing Company happens to specialize in. What started as a pipe dream for GBC Founder and Gatlinburg native Steve Wilson has become one of our city's most beloved breweries. With a wide variety of beers, guest brews and cocktails on tap, there's a little something for everyone to drink like a local.

HARD NOT TO LOVE

If you thought beer was the extent of our brews, think again! Tennessee Cider Company is the first cidery to grace Gatlinburg with a wide assortment of craft hard ciders, meads, slushies and dessert wines. You can try any three ciders on tap for free or splurge on a $5 VIP tasting to sample all on-tap ciders, plus several of their other offerings.

JUICE WORTH THE SQUEEZE

Cider turned out to be such a hit that Tennessee Stud Cider set up shop along the Parkway, too. This spot was born of the team behind Yee-Haw Brewing—so if you're a fan of their beer, their ciders might be right up your alley. They put the same passion into their new product, transforming apple juice into a delightfully balanced alcoholic beverage that keeps us all coming back.
